

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system, such as a PC, incorporating a dedicated physics processing unit adapted to generate physics data for use within a physics simulation or game animation. The hardware-based physics processing unit is characterized by a unique architecture designed to efficiently calculate physics data, including multiple, parallel floating point operations.